A photo design is often used as a visual aid for renovating an existing garden.

A photo of the perspective, perhaps a garden bed, is taken and used to create a new planting design.

If the bed has plants that will remain, the design will incorporate them with the new plants.

In this way, you can see what various plant choices will look like before putting a spade in the ground. See an example on the reverse side.

Two photos can be stitched together and although the perspective may be slightly skewed, the design intent will show well.

The certainty of a photo design can save a lot of trial and error; try one before you 'start over'.

Why Commission a Landscape Design?

We spend considerable time, effort and money to make our homes comfortable and attractive but may feel uninspired and less enthusiastic when it comes to creating our outdoor spaces.

And no wonder, there is a lot to consider:

- Plant combinations and their placement for the climate conditions in your yard;
- Relaxation areas - their type and location;
- Focal points to draw your eye;
- Trying to achieve the feel you want;
- Ensuring that what you do results in the proper level of maintenance, cost and garden style;
- And so much more.

But why let all that space remain an after-thought? Use it instead to extend your living space and create (or screen) views from the inside of your home.

Quality landscaping provides an excellent return on investment provided it is well done. The starting point for a quality landscape job is a well thought out design plan that suits your needs.

Make your investment starting with Terra Concepts Landscape Design.

The average price for this service in an urban setting is $850-$1200. Rural properties are larger and require additional work time.

The Design Process

The full process involves:

- Consulting with you to determine the scope and direction of the project;
- An analysis of your property and your completed questionnaire;
- The creation of a two dimensional colour drawing design that meets your requirements.

The property analysis takes into account views – wanted or not; what is to remain in place; climate factors that will affect choices; what elevations exist and their design potential; and any problem issues.

Good communication is vital for your satisfaction.

At contract signing, a deposit (50%) of the quoted price is required.

What You Receive

- Project outline to verify plan details;
- Two concept drawings to show the location and features to be included in the plan.
You select one or a combination of the two;
- Layout Plan, detailing all the hardscape features (materials specified), like patios or water features;
- Planting Plan, which shows all the beds with specified plants.

The final package includes colour copies of your design; a plant list with specified quantities; a plant care schedule for plant types in your garden; and if a budget is set, estimated costs to complete the project.

All materials are specified, ensuring that quotes for a landscape contractor will be comparable.
